Last week, LeBron James called NFL owners "old white slave owners." LeBron didn't retract his statement or even apologize.

Yesterday, LeBron posted a rap lyric Jews thought was anti-Semitic and LeBron immediately deleted the post and apologized.

Let's fact check both statements:

"Jews are wealthy."

- 2% of US population
- 50% of US billionaires
- 33% of Forbes top 100

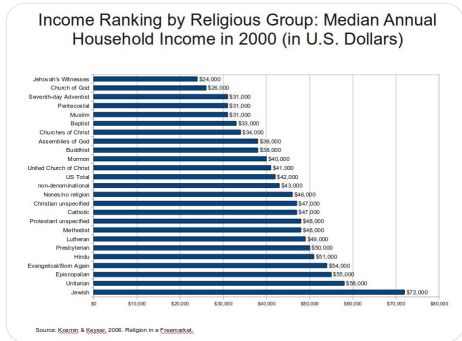

✓ True

"NFL owners are old white men."

- 41% of NFL teams are owned by Jews

✗ Lie

So LeBron apologized for the truth, and didn't apologize for a lie.

What could possibly intimidate LeBron into apologizing for something that is empirically true?

The media. Back in 2011, LeBron's career dissipation light started blinking after he disparaged a Jew on the court. But when LeBron insults "white" people, he is praised by the press.

Interestingly, LeBron also said NBA owners have a slave mentality too. Ironic, considering LeBron spent most of his career playing for Dan Gilbert - a Jew.

But it's okay though, white people will shoulder the blame for Jewish transgressions. We wouldn't want LeBron to lose millions of shekels because he said something Jews didn't like. We wouldn't want him to be another Marc Lamont Hill, Rick Sanchez, or Candace Owens 🗨️
